Welcome by the President

Welcome to Novi Sad and welcome to the 2018 Novi Sad General Assembly of the Conference of European Churches (CEC). Some of us have travelled a long way to reach Serbia and Novi Sad. Yet if you look at a map of Europe – the whole of Europe – you will see we are more or less in the centre of our continent. Moreover, Novi Sad is on the Danube, one of the great rivers of Europe which rises in the west and flows through central Europe to its eventual outflow in the Black Sea. And, on the Danube, Novi Sad was once a border city: the Hungarian and Austro-Hungarian border of Europe with the Ottoman Europe just the other side of the river. The Castle above the river for a time prevented further Turkish advances towards Western Europe. More recently, in the 1999 Serbian-Kosovo conflict, the bridges over the Danube were bombed by NATO. Novi Sad has also been a place of meeting between differing Christian traditions and to this day the Autonomous Province of Vojvodina has churches not only of the Orthodox and Catholic traditions but also Lutheran, Reformed, United Methodist and Baptist. While Serbia aspires to join the European Union, its culture rejoices in its Eastern and Slavic resonances. Our majority church host, the Serbian Orthodox Church, together with the other churches locally invites us here. And what better place to be in terms of the importance of a wide and welcoming view of Europe, the whole of Europe, in the face of movements and pressures to retreat from a vision of our continent deeply indebted to the Christian Churches and Christian culture.

Our agenda is to recapture something of the vision of Europe which is not nostalgia for a bygone Christendom, but is formed by the Christian virtues of Justice and Hospitality. Our overall theme is Witness but a Witness which is expressed in Justice and Hospitality at a time of insular retreat and reversion to neo-nationalism. Certainly, in the past, even the Christian Churches have contributed to human division. But the nature of God as Trinity in communion itself tells us that the Witness of the churches must correspondingly be one of community and communion. Communion between the churches, our ecumenical task, but also witnessing to and being an effective sign of wider human community.

Welcome to the Conference of European Churches! We are here invited to Welcome by the General Secretary
The Conference of European Churches gathers for its General Assembly in Novi Sad. The name of this historical European city refers to a new plantation, a new garden. The name and the history of Novi Sad correspond very well to the significance of this General Assembly for CEC. In the same way as Novi Sad, CEC’s place is at the crossroads of the major trends that make up our Europe – East and West, North and South. Also CEC bears the memories of our churches regarding the confrontations and conflicts between church traditions - the Great Schism dividing East and West, the Reformation, and the political currents represented by empires and ideologies, genocidal tragedies and liberation movements. The encounter with Islam represented by the Ottoman empire is part of Novi Sad’s history, as well as the cortège of today’s migrants on their way from the Middle East to Middle Europe. All these dimensions are present in the rich fabric of CEC’s Member Churches. The same great trends that meet in Novi Sad, historically and in the present, open avenues of opportunity for CEC in the service of its constituency.

This General Assembly follows directly from the previous one which was held in 2013 upstream the Danube, in Budapest. The connection is consequential, because the main task for the Governing Board and the Secretariat in the five-year period since 2013 has been to implement the Constitutional and operational changes decided by the Budapest General Assembly. As you will learn from the staff reports, this task has been successfully implemented, along with continued and considerable programmatic work. Some details resulting from the Constitutional adaptation between two different legal systems needs still to be finalised by this General Assembly. It should not be disregarded that merging administrations and working cultures of two offices from different countries has been a task demanding energy, determination, flexibility and creativity. Only from the beginning of 2018 is CEC again fully staffed, ready to set out for the General Assembly and the new mandate period beginning there.

Novi Sad welcomes the Conference of European Churches just after Pentecost in the Western and Eastern calendars. In the Christian year, this is the time of the Church, when the garden of God’s care for humanity blossoms. It is the right time to ask what is the precise task of the renewed CEC in this garden. How do the European Churches wish to use this tool, which has been reformed for better service for them?

Welcome and observations by the Moderator of the Assembly Planning Committee
The Assembly Planning Committee (APC) extends a warm welcome to all participants, wishing them a successful CEC General Assembly in Novi Sad. The notes given below will provide participants with important information for understanding the context and the work of the APC.

What it is all about
CEC has come a long way from Budapest to Novi Sad. At the outset it is important to say that the APC had to work with the available Constitution. A comparative reading of the French and English texts with the appointed legal core-group indicated a number of areas that needed to either be fine-tuned or appropriately amended in order that the Constitution be fully in accordance with Belgium law.

The process of transition from Geneva to Brussels was always going to be a complicated matter and it must be also said that, despite this, the transition went quite smoothly. However, it should also surprise no one that with such a transition there were bound to be areas that would need further work or fine-tuning in order that CEC works with a Constitution in future that is fully in keeping with Belgium law and that doubts in the working out of the Constitution, as the APC discovered, are clarified.

It must be also said that in terms of the vision, aims and the programmatic work of CEC that is anchored in the Constitution, there are no problems and no real changes needed. The key Constitutional difficulties are related to legal processes, such as the current procedure with regard to the yearly approval of the financial accounts. The legal advice received considers the current procedure legally insecure. Such matters affected the APC in planning the General Assembly, since unless the legal situation was clear, it would not be possible to prepare proper Rules of Procedure – RoP - (formerly called Standing Orders) for the General Assembly and organise the content in such a way, so that matters are in place for future action.

The legal situation has been clarified to a large extent and the General Assembly design and content have been prepared to enable in the main the General Assembly to have a forward look. The General Assembly theme with its structured focus on Hospitality, Justice, Witness and Hope offers with the bible studies and keynote addresses, the workshops addressing the ongoing CEC work, the discussions concerning Europe, will all serve to give CEC a forward looking focus. And, there will in all this be an opportunity for the General Assembly to provide the future CEC with the greater legal clarity it needs. APC was therefore fully engaged in also clarifying legal issues with the support of the Legal Core Group and the Legal firm KOAN in Brussels.

A changing CEC
The Conference of European Churches has undergone a major renewal of its structures and is still developing new working methods for purpose for the uncertain Europe of today. (The details of these developments is found elsewhere.) Our significant past history, going back to the bridge-building of the Cold War, must now lead on through a new era in which many of the assumptions which led to the creation of European structures are now questioned. CEC has an essential role in maintaining a dialogue among the churches of Europe in a time of political scepticism.

Ecumenical Dialogue
CEC is a unique forum for dialogue between (all) the major confessional families of Europe, Anglican and Old Catholic; Orthodox; and Protestant; and with the Roman Catholic Church through the Council of European Bishops’ Conferences (CCEE) and the Commission of Episcopal Conferences in the European Union (COMECE). The Charta Ecumenica of 2001 remains a very significant landmark in CEC’s pan-European Christian dialogue.

CEC not only brings together different Christian denominations, but builds bridges between smaller and larger churches, majority and minority churches. Ecumenical reciprocity expresses the need of churches for each other.

The European initiative
CEC is in dialogue with the European Commission and the European Parliament and also with the Council of Europe in Strasbourg which has a much wider national membership than the European Union. Important as dialogue with the EU remains, CEC is concerned with the whole of Europe because its membership includes many churches in jurisdictions which are not and may never be part of the EU. CEC provides a unique framework and the expertise for a wider than national consideration of European issues. Together with COMECE and the German Churches, CEC has, to take a single but important example, taken full part in the ‘lobby’ work which resulted in the inclusion of Article 17 of the Lisbon Treaty, ensuring dialogue between the European Institutions and faith communities. CEC continues to work on how this dialogue could be given more substance.

From Budapest to Novi Sad
In 2013 the General Assembly in Budapest provided CEC with the opportunity to reform itself and make itself more fit for purpose.

Since Budapest, CEC has been working with its new Constitution. Its dia-
Dialogue engagement continues. Its vision today is clearly articulated, that is, to promote a community of Churches sharing their spiritual life, seeking reconciliation, strengthening their common Witness and service and fostering the unity of the Church. In providing an authentic, credible and socially responsible Christian Witness, it will work towards building a humane, social and sustainable Europe at peace with itself and its neighbours in which human rights and solidarity prevail (Article 2.1.2 of the Constitution).

CEC also commits itself, on the basis of the conciliar process of Justice, peace and the integrity of creation, to continue to work in the following thematic areas: ecclesiology and theology; diaspora and migrant Churches, and mission; asylum and migration; youth and intergenerational dialogue; social responsibility and human rights (Article 2.1.3 of the Constitution).

The churches need CEC as a facilitator of their ecumenical and European engagement and CEC needs the churches to give it a functional structure, high-quality personnel, the input of expertise into its diverse working mechanisms and funding. This 2018 General Assembly will indeed mark another turning point in the history of CEC.

The APC - Working on key assembly tasks

This section does not highlight in detail all the General Assembly tasks undertaken by the APC. However, it contains some key snapshots.

Working on the location possibilities for the General Assembly was a challenging task. After a number of visits by staff and their reports, the Governing Board of CEC on the advice of the APC approved Novi Sad, Serbia, as the venue for the General Assembly 2018.

The agenda and time-table have been carefully planned taking into account the special requirements and it also has a forward looking focus to it.

From the various theme suggestions, the APC recommended “You shall be my Witnesses” to the Governing Board. This theme is inspired by the passage from Acts 1.8. It is an appeal to build Christian confidence in the current context of uncertainties and fear which both individuals and nations face by focussing on some of the core Christian imperatives of Hospitality, Justice and Witness and Hope.

Size

The APC then worked on streamlining the list of participants for the General Assembly. The Governing Board took the decision that the General Assembly could welcome a maximum of 515 participants, including, Delegates, Or-rganisations in Partnership, National Councils of Churches, Advisors, Observers, Assembly Moderators, Governing Board Members, Worship Committee, Stewards, Speakers, Guests, Facilitators, Legal Advisers and Assembly Staff (CEC Staff, Co-opted Staff, Interpreters, Translators, Minute Takers, Local Team, Choir, Volunteers). The General Assembly of 2013 had 470 members.

Logo
The APC approved the logo designed by the Novi Sad based Print Studio M&A. Examples of a full and abbreviated logo were reviewed and it was preferred that the full logo be used wherever possible. The logo symbolically combines the bridge across cultures, generations as well pass-over over Danube in Novi Sad with the cross.

The APC and Fundraising
The funding for this has been secure. The work of the treasurer Rev. Michael Bubik of CEC has to be highlighted in this connection. Income and expenditure of the over EUR one million budget are going according to plan; there have been no surprises so far. A few items exceed foreseen expenditure while others are under but in general it balances out. APC thanks all those churches who have contributed additionally to the General Assembly funds. Other points of note:
- Subsidy Guidelines were finalised by the APC core group and an evaluation of subsidy applications is underway; priority will be given to funding balanced delegations that include women, lay persons and youth.
- Our local host, The Diocese of Bačka of the Serbian Orthodox Church offered its generous help through applying for financial assistance to cover some significant cost elements of the event.

Registration and Conference Fees will ensure that the funding continues to be secure.

Thanks
The Local Planning Committee (LPC) with its coordinator Mr Danilo Miha- jovic continues to be a great asset. It meets at regular intervals and feeds significant information into the APC meetings. APC is very grateful to all of them.

There are other significant groups who are devoting their time and energy in preparing the ground for a spiritual and successful General Assembly. One such group is the Worship Committee moderated by the Rev. Sabine Udo-desku to whom we owe our thanks. They have been instrumental in rooting the General Assembly in prayer and worship. The others to be mentioned are the Stewards and Volunteers who will be central for the smooth running of the General Assembly and all those who are responsible for coordinating the work of the Youth Event. In this connection Ms Katerina Pekridou from CEC and Ms Satu Koikkalainen from the APC need to be acknowledged.

The APC also thanks the Assembly Coordinator, Mr Szabolcs Lörincz for his cooperation and work in taking forward a number of the APC decisions. Our thanks also go to the CEC secretariat in Brussels, especially to Ms Charlie Be- lot, Assembly Assistant, for their great help in providing logistical and other kinds of support. Likewise, we are grateful to the World Council of Churches for its support through some of their qualified and competent staff.

Thanks also go to Mr Andreas Henriksen Aarflot and to Rev. Dr Patrick Roger Schnabel, for their tireless work on legal issues. They attended most APC meetings and provided the legal expertise needed and also they support the APC in some of its other tasks.

The APC is furthermore grateful to the Presidium, the Governing Board, Member Churches and for all those who have put their confidence and trust in the APC work and helped it carry out its work efficiently and profession- ally. APC has had to deliver on many other Assembly tasks, which cannot all be listed. However, the solidarity from the Presidium and the Governing Board has been the momentum which has provided the APC with room to creatively carry out its tasks.

On behalf of all APC members, I wish you all an Assembly of fruitful ecu- menical engagement with prayer, worship and celebration, an Assembly of understanding, discernment and empowerment, and an Assembly which will enable CEC to be a confident and significant voice in a Europe of change and to lead it towards greater unity and closer fellowship.

CEC Governing Board visit to Novi Sad in June 2017
Looking at the City of Novi Sad from a height, you will perceive it as a city located in a vast plain, open to all directions. On the right side of the river Danube, you can discern the Petrovaradin Fortress, the historical site of the city, whereas on the left side are blooming tall buildings, a sign of a living city.

Between the older and newer buildings, Novi Sad is also a green city, where you will find in its labyrinth of streets and alleys, green oases and parks. The Danube, that flows between the capital of the Autonomous Province of Vojvodina, serves as a potent axe of the city.

History is part of Novi Sad, which can be seen by the bridges crossing the Danube that were once lost to the city, but are now re-built.

In terms of culture and traditions, Novi Sad is home to many events and Serbian cultural institutions: Matica srpska - the oldest cultural-scientific institution of Serbia, Serbian National Theatre, Sterijino pozorje Theatre Festival and many more. Novi Sad will also be the European Youth Capital in 2019 and the European Capital for Culture in 2021.

Novi Sad, the capital of the Autonomous Province of Vojvodina, is the second largest city in Serbia with a population of between 300,000 and 400,000 citizens.
2.2. PRESENTATION OF CHURCH LIFE IN SERBIA AND VOJVODINA

Serbian Orthodox Church

Until the time of Saint Sava and his brother Stefan the First-Crowned King (early 13th century), there had been a number of separate Serbian states that were maintained as the member-principalities of the Eastern Roman Empire. Due to their geographical position, the jurisdiction and political influence over the Serbian lands had been claimed by the emperors and Patriarchs of the East and the West alike. It was not before 1217, when the Kingdom of Serbia was established, that a serious state/national and church history of the nation began, and it was definitely turned towards Constantinople.

The Church in Serbia was elevated to the rank of Patriarchate in 1346. In the aftermath of the Battle of Kosovo in 1389 wherein the Serbian and the Ottoman army clashed on a large-scale, Serbia lost its independence. From that time on, Serbia was part of the Ottoman Empire until the 19th century. The Patriarchate of Peć was restored in 1557 and survived in Ottoman territory until 1766 when it returned once more under the jurisdiction of the Ecumenical Patriarch of Constantinople. After the abolition of the Patriarchate of Peć, the centre of the church authorities moved to the Metropolitan Bishopric of Karlovci/Karlowitz, in the territory of Austria. (The town is situated north of Belgrade, in the vicinity of Novi Sad.) The revolutionary year 1848 brought about striking changes: the Church-Popular Assembly proclaimed Metropolitan Josif Rajačić as the Patriarch of the Serbs, and Colonel Stevan Šupljikac as the Vojvoda (Duke and General) of the Serbian Duchy as part of the Austrian Empire. This accounts for the name of Vojvodina, Serbia’s Northern Province today.

Serbia gained full freedom from Turkish rule at the Congress of Berlin, in 1878 and soon after that, autocephality of the Metropolitanate of Belgrade. Independence was paid for by enormous human loss and devastation in two Balkan Wars and especially World War I. The inter-war period saw an ideological creation – the Kingdom of Serbs, Croats and Slovenes, later (1929) renamed as the Kingdom of Yugoslavia. This state was to provide a seemingly guardianship over the (tri-une) national unity and the achievement of the age-long dream about all the Serbs living within one independent country. The region of Vojvodina had become part of it, too. However, World War II put an end on the Kingdom of Yugoslavia and brought about new horrors.
and millions of Serb victims. The feeling of reaching freedom through the end of the war (1945) was soon suppressed when the Communists lead by Tito took over power and founded a new ideological state, the last name of which was ‘the Socialist Federal Republic of Yugoslavia’. The new rule meant new afflictions and temptations for the Serbian Patriarchate that had been revived in 1920. Christian believers, clergy and bishops - were sent into exile or even murdered. As long as until the disintegration of the Communist-ruled Yugoslavia, the Church was a voice crying in the wilderness; also, the Church was witnessing great injustice and crimes that victimised its people and its centuries old heritage.

The collapse of the Iron Curtain and of the states founded on Communist systems and principles, implied a new map of Europe being drawn: its new (and old) states have – fast or slow – identified their place on the European cultural and political scenes. At the same time, Serbia remained fettered by regional wars, political conflicts, struggles between ideologies and confrontations inside the country as reheated residues of unsettled accounts since long ago, and also blackmailed, oppressed and overwhelmed by some political lobbyists outside of Serbia, with not enough understanding for modern Serbian State and its citizens.

It is enough to say, that since the end of the last war on the Ex-Yugoslav territory, between NATO and Yugoslavia in 1999, 156 churches and monasteries, including medieval heritage, have been damaged or destroyed in Kosovo and Metohija.

Nowadays, the Serbian Orthodox Church spreads across several countries again. The Church presently consists of 29 home dioceses, the Autonomous Archbishopric of Ohrid/Ochrida in the Former Yugoslav Republic of Macedonia, and 9 dioceses in the diaspora. There are 45 bishops as members of the Council of the Serbian Orthodox Church. The Church is a member of the Conference of European Churches and the World Council of Churches.

Reformed Christian Church in Serbia

The Reformed Christian Church in Serbia was originally part of the greater Hungarian Reformed Church. After the World War I, Hungary lost two-thirds of its territory, and the Hungarian Reformed communities beyond the new boarders of Hungary were forced to reorganize. The Hungarian Reformed communities in this new region ended up living as dual minorities, being Hungarian and Reformed.

The first Hungarian translations of the Bible were brought to the southern regions of the Hungarian Kingdom (called Dévidék or Vojvodina) and the Ottoman Empire during the Hussite movement. At the time of the Reformation, Reformed Pastor, Mihály Sztárai introduced and then created 120 Reformed congregations in the region. After the fall of the Ottoman Empire, many Reformed Hungarians moved from Debrecen, in the north, to the southern regions. In the World War I, Hungary lost two-thirds of its territory, including the southern regions, now part of Serbia. In 1933, the Reformed Christian Church in the Yugoslavian Kingdom was established and approximately 55 000 Reformed people of Hungarian, German, Czech, and Croatian origin were active members of the Church. During World War II, the region and the Church were reunited as a part of Hungary and the Hungarian Reformed Church. However, after the War, the same territories were, again, axed from the country.

During the Cold War, church properties were nationalised, causing the churches to struggle financially. In 1953, the Law on Religion freed the properties from the state, allowing for autonomy of the church and maintenance of international ecumenical relations. In the 1970s, the Church faced another obstacle. Due to the lack of theological institutions, the number of Reformed pastors and congregation members decreased dramatically. After the breakup of Yugoslavia, as well as Reformed Christian Church of Yugoslavia, the Hungarian-speaking Reformed communities living in the now northern part of Serbia, specifically Vojvodina, reorganised to the Reformed Christian Church in Serbia.

Today, the Church keeps the same confessions as the Reformed Church in Hungary, the Second Helvetic Confession and the Heidelberg Catechism. The Reformed Christian Church in Serbia has 19 pastors serving 17 000 members in 50 congregations. Among the priorities of the Church is the dedication to the children and young people. Despite the financial challenges, the ministers and members of the Church takes its mission for the children and young people very seriously. Currently, the Reformed Christian Church in Serbia is an active member of the Community of Protestant Churches in Europe (CPCE), the Conference of European Churches (CEC), the World Communion of Reformed Churches (WCRC), and the World Council of Churches (WCC).

United Methodist Church in Serbia

This year, the United Methodist Church in Serbia celebrates the 120th anniversary of its founding. The first local church was founded in Srbobran. In the beginning, the work was carried out primarily among the German population who lived in this area. They invited a missionary to come from Germany, and thus the work of the Methodist Church begun. Several other churches were established in Vrbas, Feketić, Novi Sad, among other places. As part of this work, an orphanage was founded in Srbobran. It was open to orphaned children of all nationalities.

The fast growing church recognised the importance of educational, cultural and social areas. Therefore, a piece of land was bought, where the Betania hospital and a girls’ boarding school were built. A care home for the elderly was also a part of the church’s work.

World War II brought many changes, after which the German population was forced to leave the country and the Methodist churches were left almost empty.

In those post-war years, several local congregations from the teetotal (alcohol abstinence) movement “Blue Cross” joined the Methodist church, because they were not allowed to exist as a religious association anymore, according to the laws of the land. Their philosophy was very close to the teachings of the Methodist Church. Churches among Slovak people developed, influenced also by the work of the community of nuns, Sisters Roy, who lived and worked in Slovakia. They often went to the Lowland (the name Slovaks use for the flat land area of Vojvodina) and ministered to the Slovaks here. They tried to raise awareness of their national and spiritual heritage, but also to emphasise the importance of spiritual renewal and regeneration.

During its existence, the church experienced another union at the global level. In 1968, two other churches joined: the Evangelical Association and Methodist Church and thus the name of the church since then has been the United Methodist Church (in Europe: Evangelical Methodist Church).

Today, there are 14 local churches of the United Methodist Church in Vojvodina, Serbia, where work is carried out among several nations, such as Serbs, Slovaks, Hungarians, Macedonians, Roma and Czech people.

The activity of the church is still focused on the same things as at its origin: leading people towards spiritual knowledge and regeneration through the message of the Gospel; applying these new truths into everyday life; developing Christian communities and establishing new churches. We are engaged in social work with people who experience manifold sufferings, we seek justice and support the peace processes and fight for freedom and people’s rights.

Slovak Evangelical Church A.C. in Serbia
The Slovak Evangelical Church A.C. in Serbia is the largest Lutheran church in former Yugoslavia, speaking the Slovak language. Its largely rural membership is located in the autonomous province of Vojvodina on the plains south of the Hungarian border. It was earlier a part of the Lutheran Church in Hungary, but upon the creation of Yugoslavia, it became an autonomous church, with headquarters' in Novi Sad. Its pastors are educated at the Lutheran theological faculty in Bratislava, along with those of the Evangelical Church of the Augsburg Confession in the Republic of Slovakia.

In 1967, this Yugoslav church body was joined by the then 7,000-member Evangelical Church in the People’s Republic of Serbia, composed of Hungarian Lutherans. Prior to 1918, that small body had also been part of the Lutheran Church in Hungary. Between the World Wars, it was part of the German Lutheran Church in Yugoslavia, but after 1945 it became an independent church. As it is located between the Hungarian border and Novi Sad, its merger with the larger Slovak church made sense, although linguistic differences required adjustment. In recent years, the believers and descendants of the Hungarian Lutherans have become independent of the Slovak Evangelical Church of the A.C. and joined their own church, named the Evangelical Christian Church in Serbia/Montenegro with headquarters in Subotica.

A growing challenge for the Slovak Evangelical Church of the A.C. is maintaining the Slovak identity in a majority Serbian environment. A Slovak translation of the Bible, completed in the 1970s in Czechoslovakia, is widely used. Close links continue to be maintained with the much larger counterpart and namesake of the church in the Republic of Slovakia.

3. The Role of the General Assembly

3.1. THE CEC GENERAL ASSEMBLY – HISTORY AND BASICS

The Conference of European Churches is a fellowship of some 114 Orthodox, Protestant, Anglican and Old Catholic Churches from all countries of Europe, plus 40 National Councils of Churches and Organisations in Partnership.

CEC was founded in 1959. The movement which led to the creation of CEC dates back to the period of the Cold War. The fragmented and divided Europe of the 1940s and 1950s needed to surmount political divisions to devote itself anew to the peoples torn apart by the World War II.

At this time a small group of church leaders in East and West Europe began to enable churches of Europe to become instruments of peace and understanding. These efforts were formalised when a full-time secretariat was established in April 1968 following CEC’s fifth General Assembly in 1967.

The highest governing body of CEC is the General Assembly. The first CEC General Assembly was held in Nyborg, Denmark in 1959, while the rest respectively took place in Nyborg, Denmark (1962); Bornholm, Denmark (1964); Pörtschach, Austria (1967); Nyborg, Denmark (1971); Engelberg, Switzerland (1974); Chania, Crete (1979); Stirling, Scotland (1986); Prague (1992); Graz, Austria (1997); Trondheim, Norway (2003); Lyon, France (2009); and Budapest, Hungary (2013).

CEC works on several issues pertinent to European churches. These include dialogue with the European political institutions, ecclesiology and theological dialogue, peacebuilding and reconciliation, human rights, economic and ecological justice, employment and social issues, bioethics, education for democratic citizenship, migration and asylum issues, and EU policy and legislation. Today it has offices in Brussels and Strasbourg.
3.2. HOW DOES A GENERAL ASSEMBLY WORK?

Technically, CEC is an International Non-Profit Association under Belgium law, so the ‘General Assembly’ is in fact the compulsory annual meeting of the Members: Each year, Members must approve the accounts of the last year as well as the budget for the coming year, and give discharge to the Governing Board. According to the Constitution of CEC, the Members, i.e. the Member Churches, are represented in the General Assembly through ‘Delegates’. Depending on the size of the Church, between one (1) and five (5) Delegates are registered, who together form the actual ‘General Assembly’ (in the stricter sense).

However, CEC’s self-understanding is more far-reaching than the technicities described above. Within the limits of Belgian civil law, CEC aims at giving the General Assembly, held every five years, a more ecclesiastical character. You can see that also from the previous pages of information on its history and composition. That’s why it does not look or function like a typical members’ meeting but is more a hybrid between an ‘Ecumenical Parliament’ and a ‘Christian Convention’. The latter is reflected in worships, workshops and the like, whereas the former becomes apparent in the way, business sessions are conducted.

In order to fully participate in business sessions, you need to be a ‘Delegate’. Only Delegates can exercise ‘membership rights’, in particular voting on motions. However, most categories of participants have also special rights in business sessions. In your welcome package you will find the ‘Rules of Procedure’ (RoP) of the General Assembly, which will inform you in more detail what rights you have and how best to exercise them.

With almost 200 Delegates and more than 300 other participants, it is very important that certain rules are followed. It is not possible to summarise these RoP on one page. Many of the procedures, especially with regard to elections, are pretty complicated. This is necessary, because committees of the General Assembly and the bodies of CEC need to be representative of denominational families and regions as well as of ordained and lay, male and female, young and old persons, to name but a few of the criteria. A lot of diligence is needed to come up with proposals that satisfy CEC’s need for inclusiveness.
Gender distribution of the Delegates

Delegates older than 30
- Male: 59.9%
- Female: 30.6%

Delegates younger than 30
- Male: 4.1%
- Female: 5.4%
Confessions of the Delegates

- Anglican: 10
- Baptist: 7
- Lutheran: 32
- Methodist: 14
- Old Catholic: 6
- Orthodox: 30
- Reformed: 25
- United: 13
- Not affiliated: 9
Moderation

Even if you are a fast and thorough reader, you will probably not be able to understand and memorise all RoP. But the General Assembly is chaired by a Moderator and two Vice-Moderators who have meticulously studied them, and who are also assisted by two legal advisors with an intimate knowledge of all the internal and external rules governing CEC. They will make it as easy for you to follow proceedings as far as possible. And should you ever feel unsure of what is happening or how to proceed, you can, at any time, raise a ‘point of procedure’ (raising two hands) and the Moderators will clarify it for you.

At this General Assembly, there is also one extra-ordinary item on the agenda. The last General Assembly, Budapest 2013, decided on a major reform: CEC (Geneva) and CSC (Brussels) were fully merged, with the joint headquarters relocated to Belgium. That process is as good as complete. However, when preparing this General Assembly, several legal issues have emerged that needed further consideration. CEC sought legal advice, and the Governing Board now asks the General Assembly to endorse that advice. From the point of view of the Belgian law, the General Assembly cannot enact these changes at Novi Sad, but it can commission the Members to complete the reform process in an appropriate way, to fully align its legal base with Belgian law. This ‘endorsement’ will be sought in such a way that it fully complies with the CEC’s internal rules on amending the Constitution, so the mandate of the General Assembly is a clear and solid foundation for Members on which to build. The changes are very detailed and technical, but they do not alter the content of the Constitution adopted in Budapest. For several reasons, these changes will need to be voted on ‘en bloc’:

- The proposed amendments only serve to align the Constitution with Belgian law and good legal practice. Additional proposals might change the aims and structure of CEC and would therefore need more time for discussion than is available.
- Having had two subsequent ‘Constitutional’ General Assemblies, the General Assembly should, however, not focus on legal debates, but work together on issues relevant for CEC, its Member Churches and the people of Europe.
- The changes interrelate, so you cannot simply take some and reject others.
- At the General Assembly, it is not possible for a Belgian lawyer to verify possible amendments in the light of Belgian law.

For more details, please refer to the booklet containing the current Constitution of CEC and the text of the ‘Rules of Procedure’. In this booklet, there is a somewhat longer introduction you might be interested to read, if you feel uncertain about the formalities of the General Assembly.
3.3. HOW TO RECOGNIZE VARIOUS PARTICIPANTS

Having around 500 participants from various capacities and backgrounds, it is important to have an easy understanding of how one can recognize each other. For that reason, we have applied a badge system that reflects the type of participants.

Workshops

On 1 and 2 June, two sessions of 1 ½ hours each will be devoted to workshops. These 15 workshops have been prepared by the outgoing Thematic Reference Groups and thematic networks/organisations related to CEC. They all deepen the General Assembly sub-themes of “Justice – Witness – Hospitality” in view of a particular work area of CEC.

The workshops are foreseen to bring together in the range of 20-50 participants and will allow for a more interactive exchange on the sub-themes of the General Assembly than the plenary sessions. They deliberate on challenges and achievement of CEC in its thematic work since 2013 and will debate future thematic work in view of the strategic objectives of CEC in the next years, as foreseen in Article 7 (4) of the CEC Constitution.

Participants at the General Assembly are invited to attend and to contribute to the workshops. During the registration process participants have been asked to express preferences for the workshops and will be allocated to the different workshops accordingly. The organiser of each respective workshop will ensure that they draw upon participants’ expertise.

Members of the Strategy and Policy Committee will be attending the different workshops, so that the workshops’ discussions are fed into the policy reference document which will be adopted by the General Assembly.

The list of the workshops and the day to which they have been assigned can be found in the Agenda for Friday 1 and Saturday 2 June. Description of the workshops can be found on the General Assembly website www.assembly2018.ceceurope.org/workshops/.
Keynote Sessions

Hospitality is one of the key attitudes to which the Bible invites the faithful from the beginning until the end. It is an intrinsic aspect of Witness in the life of the church from its foundation. In the biblical tradition the experience of hospitality can be a sign of the presence of the Triune God. But Hospitality is under threat in European societies. Churches and parishes themselves struggle and discuss in Europe to what extent Hospitality can be realised, although we observe and recognise still a remarkable culture of welcome and Hospitality through Christian perishes on the ground.

Justice is one of the key notions of the Bible, which has led to deep controversial theological debates between the Christian confessions and Churches, which is therefore at the core of ecumenical debate. It’s just one year ago that we commemorated the Reformation anniversary and its’ reflection on Justice and justification. Justice in theological doctrine relates to the joyful discovery of justification by faith. But it is also a central notion of social ethics and secular debate about the situation of a society. In the global context it is said Europe and the societies in Europe have a particular emphasis for social Justice.

Witness is a central vocation and task for all Christians and Churches throughout all time – as it is expressed in the biblical quotation in the motto of this General Assembly.

But the question might be to what extent it is today seen and perceived as central by Christians and the Churches – towards members of other religions, towards the secular world, which has become more and more multi-cultural. There seems to exist quite an uncertainty, at least in European Churches, in which way Christian faith should be witnessed today, and perhaps even what the central message would be, if God is no longer a self-evident relation.
Future of Europe Sessions

Thematic discussions at the General Assembly will focus along the accents on Justice, Witness and Hospitality, on joint assessments of current challenges in Europe and the churches’ vision of the future of the continent. For several years Europe has been facing a number of unprecedented challenges, including Brexit, long-term economic difficulties of countries in the South, the massive influx of migrants and refugees, the threat to peace and stability and the military conflict in Eastern Ukraine, as well as the urgent question of the relationship of people living together with different cultures and religions.

CEC has launched a public discussion on the Future of Europe by sharing an Open Letter on the Future of Europe with its Member Churches already in 2016. This document reflects the original vision of the EU, as against the current situation, which is characterised by emerging new division lines in the EU from the specific churches’ perspective. The letter caused an overwhelming reaction through written contributions, organisation of discussions at national and regional levels and through participation at four regional consultations, which CEC organised during the course of 2017.

The General Assembly offers an opportunity to summarise the findings of the consultations, formulate the churches’ vision of Europe and to suggest the next steps in the joint churches’ action. Europe will be the centre of attention at the General Assembly in two consecutive sessions. The first one (Saturday 2 June 2018, 16.00 – 18.00) will offer a space for summarising the two years’ discussion on the CEC letter, the space for dialogue and exchange, and in particular input from the youth. The second session (Sunday 3 June 2018, 14.00 - 16.00) will be an opportunity for outlining a vision of Europe’s future and the role of churches in shaping the future through presentations of personalities from churches and from the political life of Europe, including Ecumenical Patriarch Bartholomew, Archbishop of Canterbury Justin Welby, Bishop Petra Bosse-Huber, Head of Ecumenical Relations and Foreign Affairs in Evangelical Church of Germany (EKD), Mairead McGuinness, the First Vice-President of the European Parliament Frans Timmermans, the First Vice-President of European Commission.

Discussions on the Future of Europe will be an opportunity for the General Assembly to outline a vision of Europe and the churches’ role in it. The vision of a society underlining the duty of solidarity, Justice and respect for each other and for the world around us, as well as a vision of fruitful ecumenical relations supporting such a society. The General Assembly sessions on the Future of Europe will offer a space for providing Witness on the way to achieve this aim.
Worship at the General Assembly

Worship services, prayers and Bible studies will unfold the General Assembly theme with the aid of four key concepts – Hospitality, Justice, Witness and Hope.

The different services and prayers – both inter-confessional and confessional - will reveal the wealth of liturgy and forms of spiritual expression existing in the churches of Europe.

Opening service

The service will start on Thursday at 19:30 on the public square Katolička Porta, behind the ‘Name of Mary’ Catholic Cathedral. A central action in this service will be assembling a bridge from four components. This symbolises the common path towards the unity of Christians and the whole humanity. Christians are called to build bridges in the power of the Holy Spirit. After the service everyone present is invited to enjoy a meal together on the square, anticipating the topic of the next day: Hospitality.

Daily prayers

Each day starts at 09:00 with Morning Prayers from a different church tradition, held in the “Chapel” at the Master Centre. Then, from 09:30, a Bible study in the “Novi Sad” plenary hall will take up the text for the day.

A short Midday Prayer will end the morning sessions in the “Novi Sad” Plenary Hall. The inter-confessional Evening Prayer at 19:30 in the Chapel will conclude the thematic discussions of the day. The prayers and hymns are printed in the worship book ‘Gloria Deo’, which will be distributed in Novi Sad. Please remember to bring your copy to the prayers services each time.

Worship with the local parishes in Novi Sad

Parishes from Novi Sad and the surrounding area have invited us to attend their services and meet their members on Sunday 3 June. Methodist, Orthodox, Anglican, Roman Catholic, Slovak Lutheran, and Hungarian Reformed – they are all looking forward to our visit. Details will be announced during the General Assembly.
Prayers for peace
From 17:30 on Sunday afternoon, prayers for peace will be said at the monument for Jewish and Serbian victims of the massacre in Novi Sad during World War II. We will also remember the recent past of the whole region when, among other tragedies, all the bridges of Novi Sad were destroyed in bombings. These events were a challenge for European unity and they offer an ongoing opportunity for reconciliation and cooperation between states, communities of faith, churches and people in Europe. The path along the Danube leads to the new bridge, where trees will be planted as a sign of hope and a new beginning.

Closing service
The General Assembly will conclude on Tuesday 5 June with a sending-out service in the Chapel in Master Centre. A sermon on the theme from the Book of Acts, set against the discussions and results of the General Assembly, will conclude matters. All present will receive a piece of blessed Serbian slava bread, as we set out on our homeward journey.
Committee Work
During the General Assembly several specific tasks will be handled and discussed in the Committees set up by the General Assembly itself.
In Novi Sad, work is planned to be concluded in the following Committees:

The Steering Committee
The Steering Committee assists the Moderators in the conduct of the General Assembly.

The Nominations Committee
The Nominations Committee supervises the nominations processes including nominations for the Presidency, for the Governing Board and for Committees. They make proposals to the General Assembly on these issues.

The Finance Committee
The task of the Finance Committee is to discuss the financial situation of the Conference. Having assessed the assets and income of the conference, it presents to the General Assembly a concise financial report and gives recommendations in areas such as membership fees, fundraising and a mid- to long-term financial planning.

The Strategy and Policy Committee
The Strategy and Policy Committee evaluates the progress made in achieving the strategic objectives of the Conference and makes proposals for their development and the future work of the Conference in general.

Among the tasks of the Committee is to discuss, in the light of the theme of the General Assembly selected by the Governing Board, the following:
The report of the General Secretary of the Conference;
• any thematic addresses to the General Assembly;
• any relevant results of the group work;
• any draft recommendations or statements tabled for the General Assembly to be adopted.

Public Issues Committee
The task of the Public Issues Committee is to discuss, draft and recommend to the General Assembly resolutions and statements on particular issues of international political nature or general interest as proposed by the Member Churches.

Message Committee
The Message Committee is responsible for drafting an overall message of the General Assembly. It will also take up the draft message prepared on the basis of the Future of Europe consultation process.

The General Assembly can also decide to set up other Committees for various other areas of work.

Communications and the media at the General Assembly

The CEC communications team will provide an encompassing coverage of the Novi Sad General Assembly. The coverage will highlight the theme of the General Assembly “You shall be my Witnesses” in various ways – relating stories about the life and activities of the General Assembly. The communications materials will explore subthemes: Justice, Witness and Hospitality.

Voices from CEC Member Churches, Organisations in Partnership, National Councils of Churches and European Union networks will find visibility through media content produced for the event. The communication operation in Novi Sad will actively engage participants and help build their community.

A number of communications materials in different formats will be executed before, during and after the General Assembly. These news items and information will target both church and secular audiences in Europe, as well as mainstream media.

Communications at the General Assembly will bring to focus discussions and important decisions from the plenaries, covering high profile speakers, youth and dialogue revolving particularly around the CEC Future of Europe consultation process.

Press releases, feature articles and interviews will be available in English, German, French, Russian and Serbian. These news items will be featured on the General Assembly’s website and will be distributed to the church and media contacts via email.

The General Assembly website www.assembly2018.ceceurope.org will be the main hub where news stories, photo albums, short videos, information about the programme, Assembly calendar, speakers, Assembly publications and official documents will be made available.

Live streaming of the entire event each day will be offered. Also short videos from thematic plenaries, worship services, speeches and public events will be available.

Press briefings will be held at the venue regularly. Journalists will benefit from live streaming. They will be provided with press kits, releases, presentations from the speakers, profiles and offered support with reporting, interviews and coverage for TV, internet outlets.

Facebook, Twitter and YouTube will provide everyday highlights from the General Assembly. Social media will feature interesting news stories, short videos, photos, fun facts about Serbia and official statements to everyone. These posts will welcome comments, sharing, prayers and greetings from the Member Churches, related organisations and networks.

The communications team will facilitate exhibition, showcasing the diversity of ecumenical movement and churches in Europe and beyond. The space will provide delegates and other participants at the General Assembly an opportunity to develop networks and new contacts, to learn about new organisations and their respective work in an informal manner.
5. Youth Pre-Assembly Event

In the spirit of Charta Œcumenica the Conference of European Churches commits “to promote ecumenical openness and cooperation in Christian education, and in theological training, continuing education and research.” We organised our event in this perspective.

Young adults between 18-30 years of age will participate actively at the General Assembly as delegates, stewards and advisors. Being full members of the Body of Christ (1 Corinthians 12:12-27), and engaged in the life of their local churches, young Christians will contribute their expertise and experience in the various areas of work of the Conference of European Churches. They will bring to the conversation the concerns and priorities of their generation with regard to Christian witness in Europe today.

The Event is a short ecumenical formation programme. The goal of the programme is threefold. On the one hand, it aims at providing a general overview of the development of ecumenical relations in Europe. It will place the work of the Conference of European Churches within the broader ecumenical movement, identifying and discussing key ecumenical concerns and current areas of work. On the other hand, the programme will provide practical information concerning the life and overall running of the General Assembly that will ensure the active participation of young adults.

In addition, the Pre-Assembly Youth event is intended to provide a space for young adults to engage with the main themes of the General Assembly, as well as possibilities for community-building and networking during the different sessions and social events. Part of the programme will be dedicated to the preparation of the General Assembly Plenary on Europe -that among others- will harvest and articulate fresh perspectives on Witness, Justice and Hospitality in Europe today.

Central to the Pre-Assembly Youth event are prayers and the study of the Bible. The event will familiarise participants with the variety of spiritualities and liturgical expressions in Europe, it will foster understanding of diversity and inspire respect for differences.
In order for the programme to reach its objectives, the Event is going to:
build trust and develop a sense of community, enhance intercultural and ecumernal communication, provide informed perspectives on the history of ecumenism in Europe and its main concerns, inspire respect and appreci-cation for the diverse spiritualities and theological expressions in Europe, and listen to and articulate fresh perspectives on Witness, Justice and Hospitality.

Stewards’ Programme
The Stewards’ Programme is central to the overall smooth running and success of the General Assembly. Stewards work hard and contribute to different tasks such as organising prayers, documentation, communications, language services and floor management.

The Stewards Programme will bring together 50 young adults from different parts of Europe. It begins with an intensive training during the Pre-Assembly Youth event and runs throughout the General Assembly.

The Stewards Programme ensures a vibrant participation of young adults at the General Assembly and fosters ecumenical learning and experience.
Young adults will not only enrich dialogue during the Assembly from diverse perspectives, but will also help to set directions of future ecumenical work.

7. Other Information

7.1 ECO-MANAGEMENT AT THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY

Similar to its previous General Assemblies, the 2018 Novi Sad General Assembly of the Conference of European Churches will have an eco-management that will look after different aspects of the organisation of the conference. Carbon compensation of greenhouse gas emissions due to travelling will be carried out with “Klima-Kollekte”, a church compensation fund. The money will go towards greenhouse gas reduction projects.

Meals: it will be possible to choose vegetarian meals that will be served on a buffet table. Additionally, food will be seasonal and domestic, coming from local farms, and will consist of ecological and fair-trade products whenever possible.

An attempt will be made to avoid plastic material as far as possible. There will be no mini plastic packages at breakfast, and water will be served during the conference in big recyclable tanks. The congress centre will provide possibilities for waste separation (plastic, paper, glass).

The Assembly organisation will try to reduce the use of paper consumption as much as possible. Double-sided printing, the use of recycled paper and a thrifty use of hand-outs will be steps on this road.
What is sexual harassment and assault?
On a continuum of severity, harassment ranges from whistles in the street and obscene phone calls to sexual assault. Sexual assault includes rape, sexual intercourse without consent, and sexual contact without consent. Several kinds of behaviour with a sexual connotation, if unsolicited and unwanted and especially if repetitive, can be forms of sexual harassment. Examples are: suggestive looks or comments, teasing or telling of jokes with sexual content, letters, calls or materials of a sexual nature, imposed touching or closeness, pressure for dates or activities with a sexual overtone, or offers to use influence in return for sexual favours. The feelings of the person experiencing any unwelcome behaviour are what is important. This depends on each individual and the context. In the end, harassment is not what someone necessarily intends to do but how his or her actions impact another’s person’s feelings and well-being.

Some steps to prevent and deal with sexual harassment

• Be clear with yourself and others about your personal boundaries
• What sort of closeness with others feels comfortable or appropriate for you?
• Refuse any inappropriate gesture or contact.
• Respect other people’s personal boundaries. If you are not sure ask first (i.e. would it be okay if I gave you a hug?).
• If you experience harassment, make it clear that the behaviour is unwelcome. You can say “no” with a look, words or gestures.
• Harassment is never the fault of the person being harassed. By its nature, harassment is unwanted attention or behaviour. It is not consensual.
• If harassment persists, and you are in a public place, make your protests louder so that the public notices the harasser.
• Trust your intuition and feelings if someone’s behaviour makes you feel uncomfortable. People who experience harassment sometimes try to rationalize or deny what is really going on.
• Talk about it with people you trust, so that the name of the harasser and the kind of objectionable things done are known. This is important so that others are not subjected to the same treatment. Silence may only provoke more harassment.
• In serious cases where legal or other follow-up action is necessary, a verbal and written record of events will be helpful.
• If you see or hear of someone being harassed, don’t keep silent. You could approach the person being harassed to see how you can help. Tell the person doing the harassing that their actions or words are inappropriate and make everyone feel uncomfortable. If the case is severe call for help.

• If you have experienced harassment, the solidarity care team can provide a safe space to talk about the situation and your feelings. They can also support you with whatever follow-up measures might be appropriate when you return home (i.e. local centre against sexual harassment and assault or support group through a local church).

For three centuries already, namely as long as it has been existing under the names of Novi Sad/Újvidék/Neusatz/ the city has been the space of diverse and rich cultural heritage of many nations living in it. Material and intangible cultural heritage created during the past centuries, is the basis serving as the foundation of an interactive network of scientific and institutions of culture, which makes Novi Sad of today the space of active meeting of cultures and diverse identities. It is the city of museums, galleries, and events among which the EXIT Music Festival has acquired international rewards and indisputable recognisability.

Recently, the programmes and events belonging to a new cultural matrix compared to a traditional cultural production are emerging – those leaning towards the avant-garde and alternative. Their programme epicentre is the Students Cultural Centre while Chinese Quarter is their spatial epicentre. A new creative energy that is active within the space of the Chinese Quarter is a part of ideas and activities that nominated Novi Sad for the European Youth Capital and European Capital of Culture 2021.

Novi Sad also attracts the visitors with its neatness, safe embeddedness by the Petrovaradin Fortress – the “Gibraltar on the Danube”, different languages spoken by its inhabitants, and the rhythm so untypical for hasty and chaotic pace of an urban community. The surroundings of the city core marked with baroque, neo-Renaissance, classicistic and Bauhaus buildings, reveals the picnic sites, preserved eco-systems and a complex of Orthodox monasteries settled in the territory of the National Park Fruška Gora. “Salaš” farmsteads, “čardas” and wine trails at the outskirts of Novi Sad provide the visitors the possibility to experience all the richness of gastronomy and rural customs.

Novi Sad is the city that provides the visitors the agenda of unbelievably rich content with its urban core and rural surroundings. Each visitor, according to his or her internal feeling for nice and pleasant, attractive and joyful, useful and accessible can create his or her own experience while learning about all the layers of the past and present of Novi Sad.

The diversity and richness of its population can be found in the city centre where you will see the Orthodox and Catholic Cathedral Church, as well as the Lutheran and Reformed Churches. Novi Sad is also home of a Synagogue. A memorial stone has been placed where the Armenian Church used to be. Novi Sad, the city on the Danube is the city with European history and tradition and Balkan hospitality.
